VidaBox Media Servers Now Provide HD DVD & Blu-ray storage and streaming capabilities

WESTBURY, NY – March 5th – VidaBox LLC is proud to announce new HD DVD & Blu-ray storage and streaming abilities on their line of premium media center systems. Unencrypted titles can be copied onto a VidaBox server, and then streamed to VidaBox extenders. These capabilities will be debuted in Demo Alley Room 240A at the Electronic House Expo (EHX), running from March 13th through the 15th in Orlando, Florida.

“We’re excited to include yet another ground-breaking feature in our line of media center systems,” comments Steven Cheung, President of the company. “With HD discs becoming more prevalent in movie collections, there is a growing need to store, manage, and distribute HD DVD & Blu-ray content throughout the house. Our VidaBox systems will be able to meet and exceed those needs, allowing dealers and integrators to offer their customers something truly unique.”

The addition of HD DVD & Blu-ray streaming compliments the other integrator friendly features already available on VidaBox, such as multi-zone audio streaming, RS-232 & TCP/IP control with vCommand™, and newer additions like vAutomation™ – the custom home automation GUI software w. mControl™ – which will also be debuting at EHX.

“With VidaBox, end users can now enjoy a solution that covers the entire breadth of AV needs.” Cheung continues, “For example, a RACK16™ server can be installed, and as the stored collection of music, pictures, DVD, HD DVD, & Blu-ray grows, additional space can be purchased at any time. Meanwhile, up to 10 additional ROOMCLIENT v2, RACKCLIENT™ or SLIM™ v2 extenders can be added throughout the home for 10 simultaneous AV streams. Combined with our multizone audio & home automation integration capabilities, VidaBox truly offers a complete, high definition home solution.”
